I cannot resist this...

A= About this thread...

B= Before you post a topic, be sure to write out a sentence, question, or phrase so that we know what it's about.

Threads "a" and "b"...hmmm. The moderators and Cap'ns work hard around here monitoring and archiving threads when they get overflowing, and I just want to say that we should use some common sense when starting a new thread. AND this is under the Art Bell Topics...I don't see the purpose in it. (Just being honest here folks, not trying to be mean, just practical.)

Not trying to put a damper on anyone, just want to use the space here on the forum wisely, because I know everyone here works hard to maintain this site. Please consider it folks!

Yikes...guess the congA line strayed into the "Salon"... (mac, turning the cocktail right side up)

Ok, got an idea (mac, sweeping the "a" stuff into the popcorn bowl)...

Perhaps Cydonia19.5 can ask RC to move this thread down to the Brig, and we'll follow the congA line down there (mac, straighting the pictures on the wall).

Oh, just a side bar here - so we "colored outside of the lines a bit". There are any number of threads in the Art Bell section that are redundant, and one could easily question their merit or purpose. No big deal. They are meaningful to some, and that's good enough for me.

Well, I think it was Mac who busted me on the "b" thread...because I had posted earlier...B= Back, Art Bell is BACK!

The other thing I was going to add in another post (so here it is)...is that Pirates on the FF are so inventive and creative that they can take a letter, "a" or "b" or anything, and make a Fantastic conversation out of it. 🍷 Truly!
