web page was set for 'no read' so everyone got an "ACCESS DENIED" error instead of my main page - clever, and he/she was never caught, to my knowledge, and I suspect that the 'hacking community' was sending me a message - loud and clear - anything is possible ...

Psychic Tools, like Remote Viewing can allow anyone to find obscure non-public items on servers, like Military E-Mails, encrypted, and internally referred to as "HIGH SECRET" sent from one Air Force Base to another - no hacking nor secure logons required - all there for the viewing IF you know exactly where to look ...

In closing, all Art did was alert the 'Hacking Community', assuming they listen, to the prospect that one could hack major Government servers, remotely, via a relay from a server in China, as the last routing, then hack against US Gov't sites, from our American Hackers, while drawing suspicion to the Chinese, already doing so, and thereby divert the blame ... thanks, Art - not what he intended I'm sure ... almost ties for the dumbest broadcast of all times ...

RadiMN, are you still trying to pretend that U are a big-time HaXoR? 😊

If U R still running that old 486 with the 400 meg harddrive, I think the net iz probably pretty safe from U.

Frankly I'm surprized to see U here. I thought the gubmint boyz were hot on your tail...

Radioman...I totally agree. I was suprised at how little Art knew in fact. It made me wonder about other subjects he claims to know so much about...

signing off....

seems the FBI agrees -w- me ... check ABC News around 24 hrs later than the first post here ... FBI says the hacking attacks are originating here IN the USA, but routing through China to look like the Chinese are doing it : targets are Government Sites here in the US ... can we thank Art's part in all of this ? perhaps ...
